

GlucoCrave Xtreme:

Aggressive support for obesity, hypoglycemia, and diabetes

Diabetes and other insulin related disorders are epidemic in all industrialized nations. This formula provides nutrients proven essential in the body's ability to manage glucose and regulate insulin. More complete than any other formula, GlucoCrave Xtreme represents the very latest in glucose regulation research from The Institute of Nutritional Science, specialists in disorders of excess insulin production such as hypoglycemia, diabetes, obesity, and related disorders such as gout, polycystic ovary disease and even premature cardiovascular disorders. This is the same formulation which they use on their patients and clients at their Centers located around the world.

Diabetes, hypoglycemia, polycystic ovary syndrome, most obesity and dozens of other degenerative conditions may be linked back to a condition called hyperinsulinemia, or excess insulin production. Diabetes as an example, is epidemic in all industrialized nations and could exceed both heart disease and cancer as the leading cause of death by the year 2020. Type II or adult-onset diabetes, for the most part, is a condition of excess insulin not insulin deficiency. Here at The Institute, we are probably more successful in preventing, managing and even reversing type II diabetes and other conditions of excess insulin, than almost any other area of nutrition.

Our protocol consists of key nutrients in key ratios, which have proven to provide the body with the right raw materials in which it may begin to heal itself naturally. Through the use of our unique combination of chromium, vanadium, memordica, gymnema, and syzgium, we are helping even those who have suffered for years, begin to take back their health. By adding supportive factors and powerful, protective antioxidants such as alpha lipoic acid and hydroxycitric acid, we feel our protocol, when combined with our special dietary program and exercise, can help reverse and prevent these terrible conditions from claiming more and more lives.
